

IMPACTED BY EQUIFAX?

Protect your data and your financial future.

Are you one of 143 million?

That's reportedly the number of individuals whose personal data, including social security numbers, has been compromised in the aftermath of the recent Equifax data breach. Unlike credit card theft, it's not as simple as changing an account number. Identity thieves can attempt to use your social security number for unauthorized activity in the coming weeks or even years from now.

For a flat fee, Alloy Silverstein's identity theft defense services can help mitigate risk by:

- ✓ Reporting exposure to the IRS on behalf of your individual and spouse's tax return
- ✓ Assist in obtaining a secure pin from the IRS as an ongoing preventative measure
- ✓ Alerting state taxing authorities where applicable
- ✓ Placing a freeze on both your individual and spouse's credit files
- ✓ Requesting credit reports from all 3 reporting bureaus
- ✓ Reviewing credit reports for fraudulent activities

This is a one-time service that could protect you for years.
